MONTANA

naturally inviting!

LOCATIONS UNLIMITED

You saw her magnificence in United Artists' "Heaven's Gate." It showed up again in the Wilderness Women/Filmhaus production of "Heartland" and Universal's "Continental Divide."

But there's more to Montana than the natural beauty of her mountains, lakes, rivers, lush forests, rolling plains and rugged badlands. There are the towns. Ghost towns, western towns, turn-of-the-century towns, today towns, small towns and big cities. There are the buildings. Farms and ranches, abandoned homesteads, storefronts, Victorian mansions and even a vacant territorial prison. And there are the people. Ranchers, cowboys, mountain men, Indians and trained dramatists.

Montana has another attraction and that's the full-scale cooperation you will receive from state and local officials while on location in the state. It's our job to see that your stay here is both pleasant and profitable. So if you're scouting a location and it looks like Montana might fit the part, give us a call. We'd like to help.

In Montana, call Mr. Garry Wunderwald, Montana Motion Picture Location Coordinator, at (406) 449-2654. Outside the state, call toll-free: 1-800-548-3390. Or write to him at the Travel Promotion Bureau, Department of Commerce, 1424 9th Avenue, Helena, MT 59620

HEARTLAND—The Quiet, Little Film that Captured the Nation's Heart

What better place to document the growing pains of a young nation than on the high plains of central Montana. Like so much of Montana, the land and even the buildings hadn't changed since these pioneer scenes were originally played out a hundred years ago. Montana was a natural setting for HEARTLAND, made perfect by the cooperative efforts of Montana's Motion Picture Location Office.

"We had the script and the actors and a vision of the set, but it was the State's Motion Picture Office that led us to the abandoned homestead area. Mr. Garry Wunderwald of that office assisted us in countless ways. Garry made us feel welcome in the nearby town of Harlowton, and introduced us to cowboys and ranchers without whom we could not have made the film."

ACCOMMODATIONS

Accommodations and prices vary throughout the state. Larger cities offer the most variety; however, adequate to above-average lodging is available regardless of locale. Many hotel and motel units have kitchen facilities and allow light cooking. Mobile homes and campers are available in most areas for those who prefer to live on or near locations.

Restaurants range from posh to casual, and choice is largely a matter of taste. Depending on the area, menus are provided for nearly every palate. Prices generally are moderate throughout Montana, and meals can cost as much or as little as desired.

TRANSPORTATION

Four major airlines and two commuter lines serve Montana. Direct flights or connections with Los Angeles and New York are available daily through Western, Frontier, Northwest Orient, Continental, Big Sky and Cascade. Flexible schedules prohibit specifics, but current schedules can be obtained from individual carriers.

AMTRAK offers one line through Montana, serving the northern region. Where necessary, bus connections are provided to major business centers. Freight service is also provided by Burlington-Northern Railroad and Union Pacific Railroad.

Charter air service can be contracted in most areas, and many areas can also supply helicopters. (See separate manual listing.)

CLIMATE

Montana's climate is characteristic of the high plains and mountains. Summer temperatures are moderate with highs in the mid- to upper-80s. No Montana town has a winter temperature which averages below zero, even in January, the coldest month.

Air inversions in mountain valleys frequently result in moderate winter temperatures while readings in other locations drop substantially lower. However, the mean winter temperature for all of Montana is 24 degrees.

Because of dry air and prevailing winds, Montana boasts a high number of cloud-free and partly cloudy days suitable for filming. In some areas, such conditions will be found for appreciably more than 200 days per year.

VARIETY OF TERRAIN

The state is divided roughly into thirds. The east is rolling plains; the mid-section, high plains with isolated mountain ranges, buttes, mesas, river valleys and canyons; and the west is mountainous. Virtually every type of terrain is available with the exception of desert and ocean. Montana has vast stretches of forests, peaks rising to more than 12,000 feet, unobstructed views, irrigated farmland, badlands, alpine lakes and meandering cold-water streams.

TALENT

Amateur actors and extras can be found throughout Montana. Most areas have theater groups, and most units of the State University System have theatrical departments. Units are: Montana State University, Bozeman; University of Montana, Missoula; Eastern Montana College, Billings; Western Montana College, Dillon; Northern Montana College, Havre; College of Mineral Science and Technology, Butte. Montana Centennial Troupe at Bozeman can supply cavalrymen with authentic uniforms and mounts. Montana has seven Indian Reservations which, together with theater groups and local playhouses, also can supply talent.

LABOR

Construction laborers and equipment can be contracted in any area. IATSE union members have worked with motion picture production throughout major population areas.

PUBLIC LANDS

Montana is approximately 50 percent public land.

State Parks: There is no charge for filming on state lands. Production schedules and subject should be reviewed with park superintendent prior to filming, however. Environmental or structural damage will not be permitted on park lands. The State of Montana will not be held liable in case of damage. These stipulations also are true for State Primitive and Wilderness Areas.

State Monuments: There is no charge for filming in state monuments. Prior consultation with area managers or curators of the museum or monument concerning scope of production is required. Environmental or structural damage will not be permitted on park lands. The State of Montana will not be held liable in case of damage.

National Parks and Monuments: There is no charge for filming in National Parks and Monuments in Montana. The Montana Motion Picture Coordinator can help you make advance contact with the superintendent of the park or monument to discuss the nature of the film and the producer's requirements. They will cooperate unless the nature of the filming is contrary to the philosophy of the National Park Service. If extensive construction is contemplated, a bond will be required to assure that the park is restored to its normal condition. If the park is used extensively, the National Park service may request a print for their files.

National Forests: Filming on National Forest Lands requires a Special Use Permit. Charges are made according to commercial classification of the film. Charges for fully commercial films are:

$50 per day, up to 25 persons.
$75 per day, 26 to 100 persons.
$100 per day, more than 100 persons.

EQUIPMENT RENTAL

Transportation, construction and special-use equipment such as booms and cherry pickers are available throughout the state from private concerns, state and local agencies. Catering service rental is available in all major metropolitan areas.

Photographic equipment is limited, with 16mm the only readily available medium.

LIVESTOCK AND LIVESTOCK EQUIPMENT

Livestock of all description is available throughout the state. Cattle, sheep and horses can be contracted in all areas from private owners. Tack, Conestoga wagons and other equipment frequently can be obtained from the same source. Riders and wranglers can be found throughout any area by consulting either the Montana Motion Picture Coordinator or area contacts. Virtually everyone in Montana rides a horse, so locating riders poses no special problem.

Buffalo are available from the Moiese National Bison Range at Moiese. Private contractors include:

James Burnett — Luther, Montana 59051
Bob Shall — Arlee, Montana 59821
William Brogan — Corwin Springs, Montana 59021

ANIMAL HEALTH CERTIFICATES

Special permits and tests may be required for cattle, bison, and elk brought into the state. For full information contact the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks. Tel: (406) 449-2976.

INDIAN LANDS

Montana has 7 inhabited Indian Reservations. Each is autonomous with its own governing body, so filming must be negotiated. It is advised that inquiries with detailed explanations be directed to the Montana Motion Picture Coordinator's office so that contact can be made. The majority of the lands are available for filming, and the reservations mirror the variety of terrain in Montana. (Note: See Indian Reservation Listing.)

POLICE ASSISTANCE

As a rule, Montana's local police forces are not large. Therefore, availability of off-duty officers is limited. However, police officials will make every effort to satisfy your requirements. Outside corporate city limits, County Sheriff Departments can be contacted for services other than traffic control. Highway Patrol officers can also be made available. Queries should again be directed to the Montana Motion Picture Coordinator's office for contact and specifics. (Note: Regulations prohibit use of officers and vehicles for product advertising purposes.)

Filming of local police officers, county peace officers and Highway Patrol Troopers is authorized. Charge is usually the regular overtime pay for the officers, with cars provided by the police agency.

CITIES AND TOWNS OF MONTANA

Montana is a state with deep western tradition. And that tradition is reflected in its cities and towns. Many smaller towns seem to have changed little from the frontier times in which they were established. Larger cities reflect a modern image which will fit any production need. Architecture throughout is largely turn-of-the-century, and can be found in virtually every community. Virginia City and Nevada City are fine examples of restored western towns. False fronts indicative of the West, and ornate facades are commonplace. A complete picture of Montana's towns and cities is impossible here. Consult the location photo section and specific cities in this manual for further information. Also, selected areas can provide photos and detailed information.

Deer Lodge is one of the oldest towns in Montana. It's located in a beautiful western mountain valley on the banks of the Clark Fork River. It was first a trapping and trading center; later an important stage stop between gold camps. Remnants of old mining camps can still be visited a few miles from town. Located in the valley of the white tail deer, the area is rich in history: Indian trail to the buffalo country; fur trade country; gold country; Mullan Road country; railroad country; cattle country — there is much to see of historical significance. Many buildings still intact pre-dating 1900.

SPEAKING OF MONTANA...

Montana is the nation's fourth largest state—averaging 550 miles in length and 275 miles in width. The eastern third is plains country; the central third is plains and isolated mountain ranges; and the western third is mountains and mountain valleys. The Continental Divide runs north and south through the western portion. The highest point is Granite Peak (12,799 feet) in the Beartooth Mountains southwest of Billings. The lowest point is 1,820 feet in northwest Montana where the Kootenai River reaches the Idaho line.

Climate varies with topography and altitude. Average annual rainfall is 15 inches, and the average daytime temperatures vary from 28° in January to 84.5° in July.

Montana has a land area of 93,157,952 acres over which are scattered 780,000 people. The state holds 10 National Forests, including fourteen Wilderness Areas, with 26,616,234 acres of National Forest and BLM Land. Montana State lands and forests include 5,216,176 acres, seven State Forests, 10 State Parks, 18 State Monuments, 70 State Recreation Areas, nearly 200 State Fishing Access Sites, and 31 National Historic Landmarks.

Glacier National Park, the nation's foremost trail park, with over a thousand miles of trails, is entirely within Montana. Three of the five entrances to Yellowstone National Park are in Montana.

Montana also has 30 ski areas, ranging from multi-facility resorts such as Big Sky of Montana to secluded weekend-only ski-gems, tucked away in quiet spots, and cross-country and ski-tour specialty facilities. On the other end of the season, there are in Montana more miles of blue-ribbon trout streams than in any other state.

Montana has 24 major dams which provide recreation facilities—the largest of which is Fort Peck, with a lake behind it covering 382 square miles. There are innumerable mountain lakes varying from glacial potholes to Flathead Lake, the largest fresh-water lake west of the Mississippi.

What Montana doesn't have are: traffic jams, stale air, hurry, noise, crowds, rat-races, deserts or a sea coast.
